Read the following passage and mark the letter A, B, C, or D on your answer sheet to indicate the correct answer to each of the questions.

[I] Social media has become a dominant force in modern communication, offering a range of benefits and challenges. [II] It has revolutionized the way people interact, share information, and even form relationships. [III] While these platforms offer opportunities for connection and expression, they also have their drawbacks. [IV] For instance, excessive use of social media has been linked to a range of negative effects, including mental health issues, social isolation, and decreased productivity. [V] However, when used responsibly, social media can also offer a variety of positive outcomes, such as the ability to stay connected with loved ones, network professionally, and access valuable information and resources.

One of the major benefits of social media is its ability to keep people connected. For example, individuals who live far apart can maintain close relationships through regular communication on these platforms. Social media also facilitates professional networking, allowing users to connect with potential employers or clients, and enabling companies to promote their products and services to a global audience. Additionally, platforms like Facebook, Twitter, and Instagram provide a space for people to share ideas, opinions, and creative work, fostering a sense of community and collaboration.

Despite these advantages, there are serious concerns about the negative impact of social media, particularly on mental health. Studies have shown that excessive social media use can contribute to feelings of anxiety, depression, and loneliness. This is often attributed to the unrealistic portrayals of life that are commonly shared on these platforms, leading to comparisons that can make individuals feel inadequate or left out. Furthermore, constant exposure to negative news or online bullying can exacerbate these feelings and contribute to long-term psychological stress.

Another issue with social media is its potential to distract people from their daily responsibilities. With notifications constantly popping up and endless streams of content to scroll through, individuals may find it difficult to focus on tasks such as work, school, or personal obligations. This can result in decreased productivity and a lack of attention to important matters.

Ultimately, the impact of social media depends on how it is used. If individuals are mindful of their usage patterns and take steps to limit their time on these platforms, they can enjoy the benefits of staying connected and informed without the negative consequences. Parents, educators, and mental health professionals can also play a role in helping young people develop healthy habits and manage their social media use effectively.

Read the following passage and mark the letter A, B, C, or D on your answer sheet to indicate the correct answer to each of the questions.

Globalization has significantly boosted economic growth in many countries, particularly in developing nations. By opening up to foreign trade and investment, these countries have been able to improve their economic infrastructure, increase their production capacities, and enhance their technological know-how. Multinational corporations have played a crucial role in this process by investing in local markets and creating job opportunities.

However, the economic benefits of globalization are not evenly distributed. While some countries and individuals have reaped substantial rewards, others have been left behind. This has led to increased economic inequality both within and between countries. Additionally, globalization has contributed to the decline of traditional industries in some regions, resulting in job losses and economic dislocation.

Globalization has also had a profound impact on cultures around the world. The widespread dissemination of information and cultural products through media and the internet has led to a more homogenized global culture. Popular culture, particularly from Western countries, has become dominant, influencing lifestyles, fashion, and entertainment in many parts of the world.

While this cultural exchange can promote understanding and tolerance, it can also lead to the erosion of local cultures and traditions. Some argue that globalization has led to cultural imperialism, where the values and practices of more dominant cultures overshadow those of less powerful ones.

The environmental consequences of globalization are complex and multifaceted. On one hand, globalization has facilitated the spread of environmentally friendly technologies and practices. International cooperation and agreements have also become easier to achieve, leading to concerted efforts to address global environmental issues such as climate change.

On the other hand, globalization has also contributed to environmental degradation. The increased demand for resources and the rise in production and transportation activities have led to higher levels of pollution and the depletion of natural resources. Furthermore, the global nature of many environmental problems means that actions in one part of the world can have far-reaching consequences elsewhere.

- A. Multinational corporations have contributed to job creation in local markets.
- B. Globalization has only positive effects on the economic growth of developing nations.
- C. Environmental degradation is solely caused by globalization.
